FastTrac Graduate Fulfills Her Goals

Question: Why did you join the FastTrac Program?

Cindy: I joined because I have some objectives that I would like to achieve. The first is that I do not want to work for somebody else for the rest of my life. The second is that I would really like to establish financial security for my family. I would like my son to have better opportunities than I have had.

Question: How was the experience?

Cindy: I really learned a lot about starting and growing a business. I put together a business plan and have learned the importance of having one. Whether or not you need a loan, you need a sense of direction when starting a business. You need to have a good estimate of how much it will cost to start the business, how much you need to stay in business and what your returns will look like.

Question: What was your original idea when you joined the class?

Cindy: I wanted to start a coin-operated laundry. But after doing my feasibility study, I realized the required investment was too high and the return on investment was not as high as I wanted. In comparison, I could have invested in real estate and made a greater return.

Question: How did you finally channel the knowledge and experience that you gained in the FastTrac Class?

Cindy: A year ago, my husband started a small business. He has been extremely successful and had already reached the stage where he needed to expand the business. I stepped in with the knowledge gained from FastTrac First Step and wrote a business plan to take the business to the next level. The U.S. Small Business Administration pre-qualified our loan and then closed the loan with Pine Bluff National Bank in Pine Bluff, Arkansas.

Question: How have you used the money and how is business so far?

Cindy: We are above our year-to-date sales target and that is really great; we have already bought some new equipment and hired one employee.

Question: What would you say to somebody who wants to start a small business but is unsure about how to go about it and what are your last words?

Cindy: The first thing is to make a plan; a plan is like a road map for your business. Instead of doing it by yourself, join the FastTrac First Step Class and you will receive specific guidance to determine whether your idea is feasible.

We have a plan for our personal finances; we are focused on reducing our debt, opening IRA accounts to begin saving for our retirement and starting a college fund for our son.
